Evacuation never seriously considered:

Levees did their job for West Sac, officials say

■ Apparent communication gap between officials and public, but city was never in danger from floods

By Steve Marschke

Two years ago in January, a torrential downpour dropped over an inch of rain per hour on several occasions, backing up storm drains, flooding local streets, and closing school for a day in West Sacramento.

Last week, the city successfully weathered a different kind of storm threat.

A series of storms that gathered strength late in the week never dropped rain so fast that it flooded local streets, but did raise local river levels to their highest in recent memory, causing many residents to worry if the levees would be enough to keep the rivers out of their homes.

Problems with the levee were fixed as they were discovered, reported Larry von Kaenel, the assistant to the city manager of West Sacramento, and evacuation of the city never became a strong possibility.

"On Friday, Reclamation District 900 said they could use some help patrolling the levees, and we gave them access to some of our staff so the levees could be patrolled every two hours instead of every four hours," von Kaenel said. "By Saturday, there were a lot of rumors and a lot of talk about people having to evacuate, but there was never any call for anyone to evacuate and the threat was very minute."

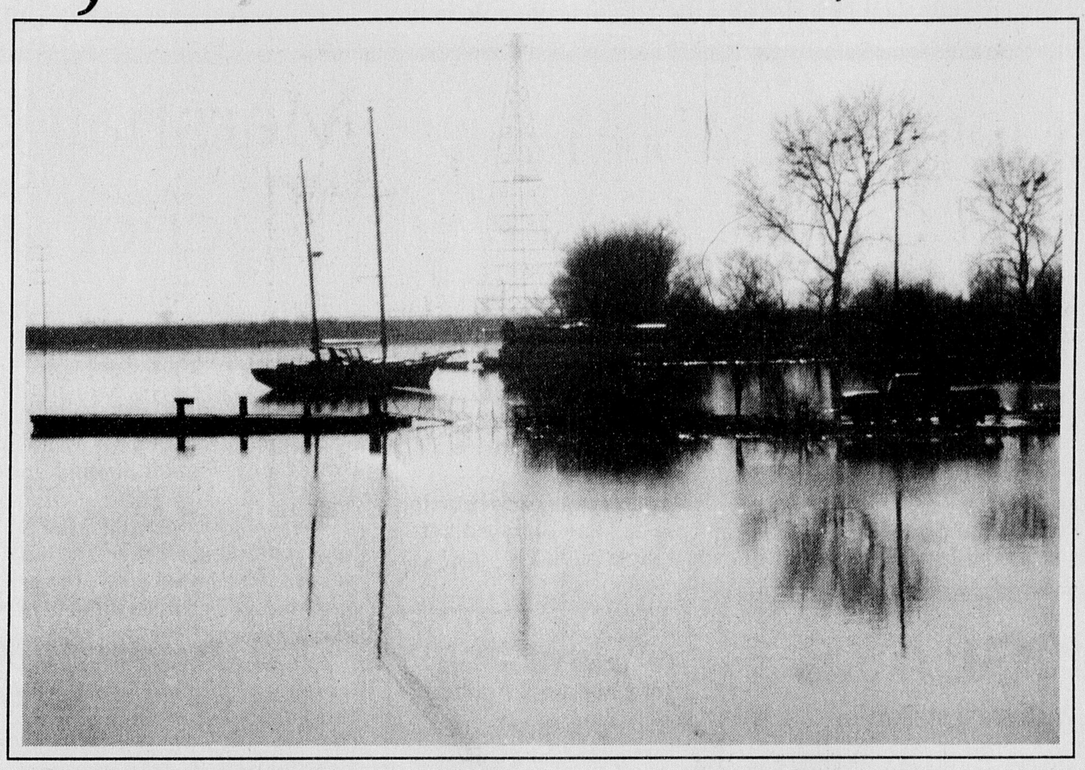

Patrols inspecting the levees found two main problems, which, promptly taken care of, never became serious. One set of "boils," or excess seepage, began developing near the CHP Academy where it nears the river at the north end of town.

"The Department of Water Resources, which owns that levee, unbeknownst to us went out and got Teichert Construction under contract and got some rocks in to stabilize it," said von Kaenel.

Another problem developed at the levee between the west end of West Capitol Ave. and the Sacramento Bypass to the street's north.

"On Sunday, everything was fine until one of our patrols saw that the levee there was undergoing some wind and wave erosion (due to high winds coming from the north). The CDF brought in some sandbags and took care of it."

As part of the developing high water problem, the city opened an "emergency operations center" last Wednesday at the police station. But an initial lack of communication with the public left some residents unaware whether officials were keeping proper tabs on the situation. By Friday, city phone lines carried after-hours recordings which kept residents posted.

IT WAS A SLIGHTLY UPHILL WALK on Tuesday for anyone who parked near the Washington Outboard Club, like the truck at right, and then used the ramp to the boat club's dock, at left. High waters which had flooded the boating facilities used by the fishermen's club, as well as the Lake Washington Sailing Club, River City Rowing Club and UC Davis rowing team had receded from their high points over the weekend, however, enough to re-expose dry land. The aquatic center is located on the turning basin at the Port of Sacramento, south of Harbor Blvd. and Industrial Blvd.

Von Kaenel said that in future emergencies such as flood threats, earthquakes, major fires or other disasters, the best phone number for people to call to find out if they need to evacuate is the police department's non-emergency number, 372-2461.

Of course, to report an emergency situation, callers should use the 9-1-1 system.

Mayor Bill Kristoff said Tuesday, as the city faced sunny and springlike conditions, that City Manager Joe Goeden and RD 900 manager Ken Ruzich "deserved a medal" for the work they put in during the storm crisis.

"I just can't say enough good things about how the staff responded," said Kristoff. "They were absolutely superb. The police department and fire department, for example, deserve a lot of credit for putting the emergency operations center together."

In a written statement released by the city, Kristoff is quoted as saying that the levees surrounding West Sacramento "are in good shape."

"The city council fully supported repairs to the local levee system over the last several years, and that has resulted in stronger levees and additional protection that certainly pays off during storms such as this."

Von Kaenel added that West Sacramento's levees are judged high and strong enough to withstand a "100 year flood," meaning the kind of flood that is powerful enough to occur about once in a century, on average.

The statistic is better understood as meaning that in a given year, the chances of such a flood are about one in a hundred. It is not, however, a guarantee that such a flood won't occur several times in the same century, or that a more dangerous flood, such as a 200- or 400-year event, could also occur.

Von Kaenel said he was not aware how last week's flooding

Advice from the IRS

Faster filing, faster refunds, free assistance and some new tax laws greet Californians with the new year, according to the Franchise Tax Board (FTB).

Phone in Your Taxes

Ten minutes to file and ten days to receive a refund are two of the benefits being offered to 1.6 million Californians this year. Going statewide for the first time is filing by phone, called TeleFile. TeleFile is fast, free and easy. It's paperless. Nothing is mailed to the FTB. TeleFile does all the math and calculates your taxes for you. TeleFile is being expanded this year after a successful pilot involving 100,000 taxpayers last year.

For those who received a TeleFile booklet, be sure to hold on to it. Since each booklet contains a personal identification number, the FTB cannot replace lost ones.

Free Tax Assistance

Tax help on the Internet! The FTB has tax forms, the answers to the most frequently asked tax questions and other information on the Internet. Visit the FTB home page at: http://www.ftb.ca.gov.

Free tax help is also readily available through F.A.S.T. (Fast Answers about State Taxes). The F.A.S.T. telephone service answers the most commonly asked state tax questions, allows taxpayers to find out about the status of their refunds, and lets taxpayers order both state and federal tax forms. The F.A.S.T. number is (800) 338-0505. Taxpayers can refer to the back of their tax booklet for instructions. Also, the FTB extends its regular toll-free information line hours through April 15, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. The number is (800) 852-5711.

Another free service is offered through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. Trained volunteers staff nearly 1,500 sites throughout California to provide free help to low-income, senior, disabled and non-English speaking persons. Many military bases also provide this service for members of the U.S. armed forces. Call the FTB at (800) 852-5711 for the location nearest you.

Avoid These Common Errors

The FTB advises taxpayers to double check their math, their California exemption credit (differs from the federal credit), and their tax from the tax table. Errors in these areas are the most common ones made. Errors can delay refund checks. Each year, Californians make nearly a million errors on their state tax returns.

Taxpayers who had two or more employers during 1996 should remember to see if they are eligible for a refund of excess SDI. To be eligible, an employee must have had at least two employers, received more than $31,767 in wages, and the total SDI (or Voluntary Plan Disability Insurance) withheld was more than $254.14. Be sure to include the excess on your California tax return. See the

Council tentative on stadium

The West Sacramento City Council agreed last month to stay involved in the discussions surrounding Sacramento mayor Joe Serna's plan to build a major league baseball park in downtown Sacramento. But this is not to be interpreted as a statement of approval for the project, or of any commitment for West Sacramento to help pay for the project, said West Sacramento mayor Bill Kristoff.

"We voted to continue being involved in the process," he said. "The counties are running this thing, and Davis and Woodland probably want out because it's so far from them. We want to stay involved so we find out how this could affect us. Is it beneficial? Is there something negative?"

De-construction

WORKERS BEGIN RAZING the old Vacation Inn (also known as the Margaret McDowell Manor, since the West Sacramento redevelopment agency acquired it). The building, purchased in 1991 when it was deemed a den of iniquity, will make way for a new senior citizens housing project, to be paid for mostly with federal funds.

Developer protests cell tower design

A developer with Southport land holdings has appealed a West Sacramento Planning Commission decision to allow a 73-foot tall cellular phone transmission tower on South River Road, north of a former proposed site near South River Road and Linden Road.

The appeal, filed by SEECON Development, will be heard by the West Sacramento City Council at its 7 p.m. meeting tonight.

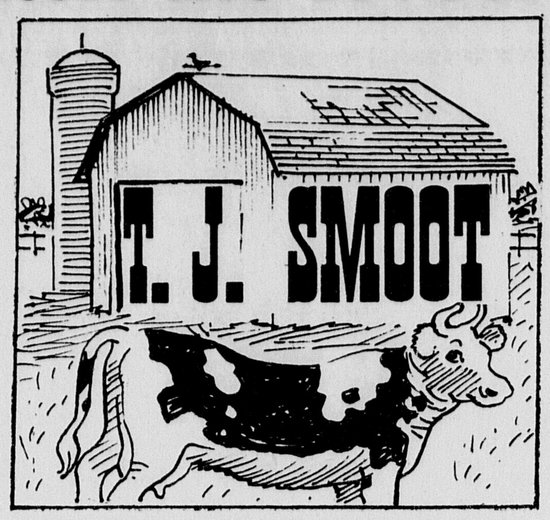

A group of neighbors opposed the former site for the Pacific Bell Mobile Services tower, saying it would reduce property values, create an eyesore and hinder development potential in the area.

The tower could become taller if it eventually services other phone carriers -- an option which is favored by some because it will reduce the need for other towers.

City staff has reported that state law limits the city's legal rights in limiting the placement of new cellular phone towers, although the city still has the ability to regulate the aesthetic considerations of such towers.

SEECON and Pacific Bell Mobile Services have worked out a modification of the terms of having a tower at the new site which, if accepted by the city council, will negate SEECON's appeal. The agreement places tighter restrictions on the height and color of the tower.

Let others watch the levees -- Smoot watches football

The other night I couldn't take my eyes off the tube as flood reports came in about levee after levee breaking, sending thousands out of their homes. We were caught up into the frenzy and found ourselves eagerly listening to information about the water level at the "I Street Bridge." Mrs. Smoot prepared for an impending evacuation order by packing bags of clothes and other articles in the event we had to leave in a hurry. I prepared for this near certain disaster by hunkering down in front of the TV with a bowl of pecan ice cream and chocolate topping. "Clink, clink, clink," went the spoon.

And it rained. And it poured.

Then last Saturday while I cleaned the carpets, I carefully positioned myself to work on the carpet AND watch the tube for another storm-related event: The NFC playoff game between the Green Bay Packers and the San Francisco 49ers.

It was raining in Green Bay, Wisconsin, and I got a kick out of watching those guys sliding in the muddy muck at the end of each run. As the game wore on and it appeared that the Packers were going to win, I was reminded of some half dozen boyhood years when my dad was absent from our home. With no male mentor, I turned to the TV to teach me about life, growing up, and becoming a man. I was left on my own to seek a male role model, and I found it in Sunday mornings on the tube.

I watched football.

I swallowed football, and in a limited sense, it became my surrogate father. So when things happened in football, I ate them up. From football I learned that there is an honor code in life, that one should play by the rules, that personal glory can come through working together as a team, and that hard work and a little luck pays off.

I pretended to be Daryl Lamonica throwing a 'Hail Mary' to Fred Biletnikoff or maybe a Franco Harris lumbering past sluggish linemen for a touchdown. I did it in slow motion, just like they did on TV. I made the deep "oooof!" and "auuughghgh" sounds, just like they did. I straight-armed poor, outmatched linemen. I made punishing tackles on unfortunate halfbacks who dared come my way...all in slow motion.

When I was a kid, the Raiders played in Oakland and dominated any opponent, and the Rams played in LA and were quarterbacked by some guy named Roman Gabriel. It was a time when, if Green Bay won a game, the commentators always said, "The Pack is Back! The Pack is Back!" This excited me because it meant the old Green Bay dynasty was coming back, something sports commentators longed to see happen. This was also before astroturf became popular, and most everybody played in whatever weather the game found them. This included rain, and of course, rain turns to mud during a football game.

Many years ago, one fall afternoon after a storm, Ricky Clark, "Eddie" and a few other nameless kids and I met in the park to play football, or should I say "mudball." We passed, we ran, we did commentary, we tackled, we got wet. And when it was all over, we ran and dove in the mud to see who could get the muddiest.

Last Saturday the Packers won in a virtual mudbowl. After the game, I reflected on what watching football and getting caught up into the teams meant to me as a youngster. It meant that I identified and belonged to a system of values, just like values that would be established by a dad. And I glomped on to it, just like any fatherless boy would do.

Now, sports mean different things to different guys. To some, it simply means a diversion from the day, to others, it's reliving 'golden' athletic days of yesteryear. I discovered last Saturday that even now, to me, football is not just another sport, but rather an old familiar father figure of sorts. So as Green Bay wins games, more than a sporting event will be on my mind as I tousle around the house in my socks chanting (with a slight, irrational desire to fly headlong into a backyard mud puddle), "The Pack is Back!, The Pack is Back!"

Marshall High grad selected 'Teacher of Year' by magazine

Elisa "Linda" Facio

Elisa "Linda" Facio, a former West Sacramentan who know teaches at Colorado University at Boulder, has been named as "Teacher of the Year" for 1996 by Hispanic Magazine, a national publication based in Texas.

The magazine called Facio "an outstanding teacher who has put forth time and effort to impact young Hispanic students in a positive way."

Facio received the award, which is sponsored by the Nordstrom retail chain, at an Oct. 9 ceremony in Washington, D.C. She will also be featured in a Jan./Feb. issue of the magazine.

Facio has been on the faculty at CU-Boulder, first in the sociology department, and now in the ethnic studies department, since 1991.

Born in Washington state, she graduated with honors from James Marshall High School (now called River City High School) in West Sacramento in the 1970s. She earned her bachelor's degree in sociology with honors from Santa Clara University, and her undergraduate education included a year at the University of Madrid in Spain.

Facio earned a master's degree in sociology from UC Berkeley in 1981, and a doctorate in the same subject at the campus in 1988.

Now a resident of north Denver, Facio is the daughter of West Sacramentans Ernie and Pat Facio.

She is working on two more books to follow her first, Understanding Older Chicanas: Sociological and Public Policy Perspectives.

Facio has been rated highly by her students, whom she teaches in classes ranging from introductory to graduate level. She has appeared on radio talk shows, a PBS special on Mexican immigration and a two-week news special on Cuba by a Denver ABC-affiliate station. That special was nominated for an Emmy.

Obituaries

Nell McMillan

Nell McMillan, who was born on Sept. 21, 1913 near Tampa, Florida, died on Jan. 5, 1997, in Sacramento at the age of 83. She was the youngest of four daughters born to George and Birdie Morris. Her grandfather was the master of a sailing vessel out of Nova Scotia, Canada.

Mrs. McMillan's father as a young man worked on his father's ship before emigrating to the United States. Mrs. McMillan arrived in California with her mother and sisters after her father was transferred to San Pedro with the U.S. Customs Service. She graduated from UCLA with a degree in liberal arts.

Mrs. McMillan worked in Sacramento for the California State Library, California section, following her graduation. She married Charles Ray McMillan on Jan. 19, 1947, and left the library on the birth of her daughter in 1951. Several years later, she went to work for the Sacramento Army Depot, remaining until retirement. West Sacramento was her home for over 40 years.

Mrs. McMillan is survived by her husband of 49 years, C.R. McMillan; by daughter and son-in-law Jean M. and John Clark; by granddaughters Jennifer and Jamie Olsen. Funeral services will be private.

She will be missed.

Now that Christmas is over, where do you take that tree?

It's January already!

So what do you do with that Christmas tree, which has now served its purpose?

The easiest thing to do is put it out into the street, in sections no more than four feet long, for waste collection.

But to save landfill space, a better option is to recycle your tree into mulch for local plantings. To do this, drop your tree off (no tinsel please) at Riverside Christmas Tree Farms, 1290 Linden Rd., at any hour of the day through Jan. 12.

To reach the tree farm, go south on Jefferson Blvd. from the freeway into the "Southport" area, then turn east (left) on Linden Road. The tree farm is on the left.

Happy New Year!

It's in with the new and out with the old. Out with the 49ers, Cowboys, and Steelers, and in with the Jaguars, Panthers and Patriots. There will be new blood this year in New Orleans for Super Bowl XXXI.

The 49ers tried to take on Green Bay last week with a quarterback that had two broken ribs, but the Packers are not to be denied this year. The Packers are hungry this year after losing last year to the Cowboys in the NFC championship game.

In Green Bay last Saturday, a crowd of 60,787, with just three no-shows, braved the cold, rain and snow to cheer on the Packers to a 35-14 victory over the Niners and move them into the NFC championship game.

Did you know the Packers are celebrating the 30th anniversary of winning Super Bowl I? Green Bay won their first two Super Bowls, but that was in 1967 and 1968. The Super Bowl trophy is named after Green Bay coaching legend Vince Lombardi. Do you believe in destiny? The second year expansion team Carolina Panthers, who were 7-9 last year, upset the defending champion Dallas Cowboys 26-17, and now march into Green Bay Sunday morning (9:30 a.m., FOX) to play for the NFC title and a trip to the Big Dance in New Orleans.

In the AFC, the Denver Broncos took an early 12-0 lead, but Jacksonville came back in the second quarter to take the halftime lead 13-12. The 14-point favorite Broncos underestimated the Jaguars, who never relinquish the lead, in a stunning upset 30-27 victory. The Jaguars, who were 100-1 to win the Super Bowl at the start of the season, travel to New England to face the Patriots (1 p.m. NBC) on Sunday's late game. New England had two weeks to prepare for the Steelers and Coach Parcell's game plan fit like a glove. The Patriots jumped on the AFC's top ranked defense with a 21-0 lead in the first half and mugged the Steelers 28-3.

Last week, I was 3-1 in my picks, losing only the Denver game, but this week it's for all the marbles!

SUPER BOWL XXXI: GREEN BAY vs. NEW ENGLAND.

Green Bay 23, Carolina 13.

New England 31, Jacksonville 23.

The Kings (14-20) are 6-4 in their last ten games and are starting to get healthy as they head into a soft spot on their schedule. The Kings travel to Vancouver on Thursday, then come home to play the Charlotte Hornets on Sunday at 6 p.m. With the return of Tyus Edney, Billy Owens and Corliss Williamson to the lineup, the Kings are vastly improved. It also helps to have Mitch Richmond, who is averaging 29 points in his last 12 games, shooting well, as is ex-bench warmer Kevin Gamble, who is shooting 56 percent from three-point land.

The San Francisco Giants caravan is heading towards West Sacramento on Tuesday, Jan. 14. Manager Dusty Baker and former pitcher Vida Blue, and pitchers William Van Landingham and Shawn Estes will be attending a luncheon at the Club Pheasant from 11:30 to 1, with proceeds to benefit the West Sacramento Junior Giants Youth Baseball Program. The cost is $15 per person. For more information, call Adrian at the West Sac. Parks & Community Services Dept., 373-5860.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Cautious optimists

Ten years after cityhood, West Sacramento has acquired a "once bit, twice shy" kind of mentality when dealing with new development ideas. In some respects, this is a welcome change from the naive, gung-ho "give the developer whatever he wants" mentality of the early days.

This is largely due to the dashed dreams and prolonged recession which put the kibitz on local plans for growth in the city's first ten years.

This cynism is obvious when we are dealing with new projects and new ideas -- for example, in the way West Sacramento is looking a gift horse in the mouth over the proposed donation of 42 acres of riverfront land from Lighthouse Marina to the public.

City staff is excited about the possible acceptance of the land, which is located across from the junction of the American and Sacramento rivers, and has dreams of turning it into a combination park site/office project with public river access.

Elected leaders are less sure. With other well-intended boondoggles like the Vacation Inn and proposed marina at Lighthouse weighing on their minds, they are waiting for a more detailed anaylises of the costs to the city of taking this land off of private hands.

And that's as it should be.

Likewise, West Sacramento is taking it slow on its support for Sacramento's plans to build a major league ballpark downtown -- a project which local optimists say would create an economic boon for West Sacramento's services just across the river.

Rightly, West Sacramento has thus far committed only to keeping tabs on the project, knowing full well the city's residents would be less than thrilled to be committed to help paying for the new ballpark.

In the instances of both the Lighthouse property and the Sacramento ballpark, caution is the keyword. It is hard to imagine the West Sacramento City Council of 1987 behaving the same way in the same circumstances.

A local businessperson mentioned the other day that her home business location in the "state street" area near Park Blvd. would put her in good position to profit from the traffic on the Palamidessi Bridge now under construction.

Not so. Many residents still don't realize it, and won't realize it until they drive across, but that bridge will not be a viable connection between Southport and either downtown West Sacramento, downtown Sacramento or the Park Blvd. area.

The bridge will primarily help only those drivers travelling between Southport and Harbor Blvd. and points further west.

Its main advantage to most north-south travellers will be in relieving some of the traffic from the Jefferson Blvd. corridor -- but don't expect too much of a break, because the bridge's construction means new growth will be allowed to occur, bringing more cars to the area.

Only from a safety standpoint is the bridge a clear winner for the public. The new bridge will provide a second connection between the northern and southern parts of West Sacramento in case of an emergency.

Helping Hannah

As the holidays were upon us soon after our fund raiser, please accept our belated, but sincere, thanks for all your support from the Hannah Schroeder Fund Raiser Committee.

We have numerous organizations and caring individuals to thank for helping the Hannah Schroeder Fund Raiser to be such a successful event.

The love and support from our community was overwhelming and deeply touched our hearts. We wish to thank everyone who attended or contributed in any way and also the following merchants:

A very special thanks to FM 102.5 for the wonderful music they provided, and all their support and assistance throughout the evening. We feel the event would not have been such a success if it were not for the attention that Steve Trejo (formerly of West Sacramento) was able to provide. Also special thanks to the Club Pheasant, who donated all of the pasta; J.C. Produce, who donated all the salad; W.G. Clark Printing (Tom Green), who donated the tickets; the VFW Hall, who donated the hall for the evening; and Jean Rowe, from the VFW, who was a tremendous help and a guardian angel that evening.

We sincerely hope we haven't forgotten anyone who so graciously made a contribution to this wonderful event. Again, thank you all from the bottom of our hearts!

God bless all and may you have a wonderful 1997!

No new taxes

Sacramento's budget meetings are similar to watching "big time wrestling matches." They have sent out questionnaires but the questions are rigged to create a taxpaying cattledrive for the new stadium. After my friend asked some questions, she was transferred to someone in Oregon, and they went on to tell her she would be dropped from the list for not cooperating because she wanted to know more and had objections to the bias of the approach.

I joined her in a meeting with their budget director and you must know that the public is being "moooved" towards passing a tax to build that stadium. Sacramento has gone into the golfing business, marina business, has lots of investment pools which they won't even discuss, have issued $40 million dollars in bonds for the stadium which has now changed departments and hands several times, is funneled through a university in Oregon, a public management firm which "moooves" the public towards its intended goal, and then back to the flood control and public works department. How do they manage to manipulate the press in Sacramento also, because the Bee had an article stating that a new tax to build a stadium did not fly in most area, except Denver, but the heading said that the public wanted a new tax.

After talking to Richard Gann on Friday about government money manipulation, etc., he sent me some of his new literature on what groups like Gann and Jarivs are now doing. Taxpayers will be asked to pass another initiative soon finally stopping government from hiding and manipulating the taxdollars. Making government spend our dollars only on the things which they are originally determined to be used for, including any interest, profit or gain being mandated back to the original improvement or services. It will at least cure the hiding of funds in these investment pools; and then telling you they have no money, like Sacramento is doing. Sacramento is telling the public that it needs to cut services and raise taxes, while they are in these businesses using taxdollars for things that benefit the rich and leave the poor at the mercy of those in power. Now sewage has justification for floating down the river because there is no stadium tax to cure the fact that Sacramento spends its money questionably.

Regionalism is the new political religion. The big fish tell the little fish to join their funding pond, but then the big fish eat

Sound Off!

"Sound Off" is your call-in opinion line. For information on how to use it, see the note below on this page.

This week's comments from the public:

I'd like to complain about the city of West Sacramento's ability to tear down 10 to 20 heritage oak trees on C Street for a city project, but when a private party has an oak tree they are supposed to take care of it and not be able to tear it down.

It's kind of two-faced of the city, but that's the way our city is.

I've noticed no one ever calls the "Sound Off" line because you guys never have any articles here, so I guess people don't want to call unless they have something critical to say.

I'm curious how come no one is calling. It used to be one of the most interesting spots in the News-Ledger, and I know this might sound like criticism, but I'm finding the News-Ledger a little boring lately.

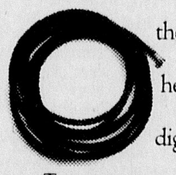

(Editor's note: you're right, the "Sound Off" line has been pretty quiet for awhile. Things really calmed down when we restricted its use, prohibiting the anonymous criticisms of other people through "Sound Off." We still allow limited criticims of public policy here.

When we required anybody with a critical comment about somebody else to put it in writing and stick their name next to it (as a "Letter to the Editor"), calls to "Sound Off" tapered greatly. Ah, well -- the price of fairness.)

WHY ORGANIC GARDENING ISN'T JUST A BUNCH OF MANURE.

Organic gardening is a lot more than natural fertilizer. And organic gardens do a lot more than make your yard look pretty. They help make the environment healthier. So let's dig in and see how you can help.

To conserve water, use soaker hoses instead of sprinklers.

The first step to creating an environmentally friendly garden is to compost. Composting not only helps produce the bacteria, nutrients and mulch plants need, it also reduces the amount of solid waste your home creates. Another easy way to help the environment in your garden is to change the tools you use. For instance, instead of using sprinklers, try using soaker hoses. They leak moisture into the soil at slow rates, so water gets absorbed instead of running off. You may also consider using a rake, instead of gas-powered blowers.

Use a rake instead of gas-powered blowers.

Rakes use no fuel and give you some exercise. Next, think about the types of plants you plant. Consider planting perennials. Perennial beds provide refuge for animals and insects that will eat pests and reduce your need for chemicals. Finally, think about planting a tree in your backyard. Trees keep harmful carbon dioxide from entering the atmosphere and create lots of energy-saving shade.

Over 15% of solid waste could be reduced if everyone who gardens composted.

So you see, when we say organic gardens are a good idea, it's no bull.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered five feet six inches at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

Farmers along the river south of West Sacramento headquarters are clearing off brush and other impediments on the levee road so that during the summer season there will be a clear passage-way as far south as River View. This stretch of waterfront is a favorite place for sportsmen who enjoy fishing and many a good mess of cat-fish, shad and even salmon have been landed there. Besides the willows along the stream afford splendid shade in the heat of the summer and these willows will not be interfered with by the farmers who are clearing the levee for the roadway. O. E. Vantassel is doing the work of clearing and it is possible that as soon as this is done the crown of the levee will be graded by the Reclamation District No. 900 as a further step toward improving the road. Supervisor Buckingham has lent encouragement to the farmers by way of a tentative promise that if the clearing and grading is done by the landholders along the river he will see to it that sufficient gravel is secured to place the road in a permanently improved condition. This will be a great advantage to residents at this side of the river, especially the farmers along this side of the stream as well as to all comers who seek enjoyment in fishing and camping in the cool shade during the summer months.

The deep well that is being sunk at West Sacramento headquarters reached a depth of 776 feet yesterday at which point the drillers believe that they have succeeded in getting a wonderful clear supply of water, but nevertheless they will continue on down to adepth of about 800 feet. When a depth of 800 feet will be reached a large pump will be installed to clean out the drilling material but in the meantime the supply of water seems to be so plentiful there seems no doubt the well can supply any future need of a large population in the district. West Sacramento officials believe that as soon as the well is completed the McAnulty Corporation and its officers will go ahead with their plans of the improvement of the West Sacramento District.

McNally and Partridge in the West Side Auto Camp continue to ship mushrooms from the district to various large centers of population where there is a big demand. Mushrooms have been shipped to Salt Lake, Denver, Chicago, and New York with splendid returns from those centers of population where a fresh mushroom is a novelty at this time of the year. McNally and Partridge are astonished at the demand that comes to them for the fungus but yet when the thought recurs that Eastern states are now under a blanket of snow it is not surprising that the demand for fresh mushrooms should be active at this time of the year.

Jack Sullivan or some dope fiend giving that name, was arrested last Wednesday by Roy Jones of the narcotic squad and Constable Frank Wilson. In his possession was found a small quantity of morphine which he evidently intended to dispose of to some of the dope fiends who are going to early graves through the medium of the Volstead law. Sullivan was sent to Woodland for 90 days by Judge Barry in an effort to clear him of the terrible bad habit of consuming dope.

Lily Van Deren has returned from Winnemucca, Nevada where she spent the last month visiting with her sister, Ida. She declares that the weather has been extermely cold in the pine nut state and although it feels cold in California the temperature is nothing compared to what it is in Nevada.

The Washington volunteer fire department was called out last Wednesday evening about five oclock to extinguish a flame that had been started in the home of A. Flores on Second street. It seems that Flores was filling a gasoline lamp with a lighted candle standing close by to render light. The evaporating gasoline caught fire from the live flame of the candle and communicated to the open lamp. Immediately there was an explosion but Flores made an attempt to throw the lamp out of the window, but unfortunately, hit the wall, scattering gasoline all over the room. The family made an attempt to extinguish the flames and did so successfully although a great pile of clothing was burned and ruined in subduing the gasoline flames on the floor of the home. When the volunteer fire department arrived at the scene the flames were extinguished.

The Blue Goose Gun club closed its club house and its grounds for the season yesterday, January 16th, the date specified for the closing of the duck season. The season was not a very profitable one for the promoters of the club, but arrangements have been made so that next year they can make some returns from their investment. They claim that they are all prepared for a big season during the fall and winter of 1925.

Great numbers of salmon are being speared in the canal near the trestle of the Sacramento Northern Railway west of Elkhorn and on the county road leading to Woodland. It would seem these salmon came up along the dredger cut west of the West Sacramento levee and migrating up the old Tule Canal reached the canal along the trestle of the Sacramento Northern Railroad. Last Wednesday seventeen were speared by Sacramento fishermen who had heard that the salmon could be secured there. Inquiry was made at the Fish and Game Commission about catching the fish and information was afforded that any individual could secure three in thus spearing. The salmon are spawning in the old dredger cut along the county highway between Elkhorn and Woodland.

Sam Davis was arrested last Wednesday by Constable Wilson on the alleged crime of issuing bad checks. The warrant for his arrest was issued by a Justice of the Peace of Huntington Beach and Davis is now waiting for an officer from that point to be taken for trial.

Joe Allen was taken to Woodland County Hospital by Constable Wilson last Wednesday for medical treatment which is deemed necessary to save his life. Allen is about seventy-six years of age and has been making his home in Washington during the past three years.

Sheriff Monroe was a visitor in Washington yesterday on official business of the county.

A great New Year's feast was given by Joseph and Tony Valine at their home in West Sacramento, to which more than one hundred friends and relatives were invited. The event was such a large one that it is a surprise because of the magnificent feast that it escaped the ears of the Independent and is mentioned now only was put up by the Valine boys for their many friends. A great dinner of turkey and trimmings was supplied to all the friends during the afternoon and for the balance of the day a general dance was induged in with lots of god things to help along the occasion. Some of the older members of the party indulged in playing cards during the afternoon but most of the farmers in that locality enjoy a jazz dance once in a while, even going so far as to shimmy. Among those present were Manuel Foster and wife, J. S. Bell and wife, Tony Valine and wife, Joe Valine and wife, Tony Pimentel and wife, Frank Azevedo and wife, John Calderia and wife, Alfred Valine and wife, Frank Valine and wife, Alfred Bennett and wife, Leroy Bell and wife, King Bettencourt and wife, Manuel Valine, Mrs. A. P. Valine, Arthur White and wife, Manuel Nevis and wife. A host of youngsters were also present on the occasion who were supplied with all the sweetmeats that they could possibly consume.

Mrs. Reinersman has been confined to her bed during the past week suffering severly with the infirmities of age. So serious has her condition become that relatives fear for the worst especially because of her weakened condition. She is the mother of Mrs. P. A. Hart who is devoting all of her time and attention to her mother's care.

Joe Pereira declares that his West Sacramento Auto Camp is becoming noted for the number of people who are taking advantage of his accomodations and who evidently came from Ireland. The Rileys, the Murphys, the Crowleys, the Lawlers, the O'Briens and the O'Connells are camping at the West Sacramento Camp in great numbers and although they don't mix very well with the Portuguese, Pereira declares that they are much better pay. At any rate he is receiving his share of remuneration from the people of Ireland who are now traveling in automobiles where they formerly went around in a donkey's cart.

Next Sunday a wedding will take place at the West Sacramento Auto Camp but the Independent has been unable to secure the names of the bride and groom. Suffice it to say that the young people are of a nationality indicating that their forebears came from across the sea.

Miss Vera Klatz of Sacramento and Archie Lee Moffat of Washington were united in marriage last Monday in Stockton. Following the wedding ceremony the young couple departed for San Francisco. They expected to make their home here.

A. A. Dassonville is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. A. A. Dassonville and daughter Helen returned home from a visit at Tres Pinos. They were accompanied by Mrs. Hilma Joseph and three daughters, who are now visiting Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Manchester.

Mrs. Olga Machado of Suisun is spending several days here visiting with her mother, Mrs. Catherine Caffaro.

The wife of a Congressman, suing for divorce, was forced to don a kimono in court the other day so that the court could see her.

Gee, what a snap those judges have.

DOROTHY VAN DEREN HEADS HONOR ROLL IN HIGH SCHOOL

WOODLAND, Jan: 10.—Miss Dorothy Van Deren, senior of the Woodland high school leads the honor roll for the past period of school activities, according to the list of the more successful students completed yesterday by Principal William M. Hyman. Miss Van Deren made four "e" grades, which means practically 100 per cent in four subjects. In the junior class there were three with four "e" grades: Arlean Milsap, Bernice Braden and Walter Miller. The senior honor roll, reflecting as such credit upon students as upon faculty is as follows:

Dorothy Van Deren	4E
Kent Tillighast	3E
Eleanor Fait	3E
Grace Hughes	3E
Dora Whitehead	3E

WASHINGTON TAXPAYERS HAVE BACKING OF DOWNTOWN ASSOCIATION OF THE CITY OF SACRAMENTO IN ROAD QUESTION

The most remarkable thing about the hearing granted by the State Highway Commissioners to the taxpayers of Washington last Wednesday afternoon was the staunch support given by representatives of the downtown association of Sacramento to the contention that the State Highway through the town of Washington should lead to the Southern Pacific bridge rather than the M Street bridge.

James L. Flanagan owner of the Traveler's hotel represented the downtown association, and argued against the routing made by the highway engineers to carry the road to the M St. Bridge. He was accompanied and supported by Charles Merry, secretary of the downtown association.

Flanagan contended that the M St. bridge is not the proper place to cross the river for travel because of the condition, first of the bridge, and second the condition of the approaches to that bridge.

He declared that the Southern Pacific bridge crossing even though it is an elevated one is much preferable to the crossing on the M street bridge and suggested that when the Southern Pacific depot now under construction, is completed the angle near I Street will be straightened out to land vehicles on Second Street with a gradual incline that will not be strenous for loaded vehicles.

On convening the State Highway Commissioners were informed of what had already been done before the Board of Supervisors in Woodland about a month ago. Secretary Frank Mixon of the board advised the commissioners that an appropriation of $9,000 had been asked from the Yolo board of supervisors as its share of the expense of constructing a new subway under the Sacramento Northern enbankment at a point about five hundred feet west of the present subway. He advised the board that a delegation of Washington taxpayers had appeared at that meeting requesting postponement of the appropriation until such time as this hearing could be given so that the property owners of Washington could present their grievances against the routing of the highway to the M Street bridge.

Mr. Mixon explained that it seemed to be the unanimous sentiment of the people of Washington that they would be injured and out of pocket if they were taxed to build a subway and were then forced to relinquish that portion of the road which should run through the town.

Following Mixon's explanation, Dr. F. L. Atkinson, a large property owner of Washington took up the cudgels in favor of the road leading to the S. P. bridge. Dr. Atkinson made a good talk drawing attention to the dangerous condition of the entrance to the M Street bridge at both ends with a switching yard on the Sacramento side and several tracks and roadways criss-crossing each other at the western end.

As a representative of the Washington Booster's club, Joe Pereia declared that for years the taxpayers of Washington had been paying taxes for a state highway through the town but so far to this date have received no benefits, not even a respectable roadway through the community. He also drew attention to the fact that for years the taxpayers of Washington had been contributing without complaint to the redemption of highway bonds and interests on more bonds in the building of the Yolo Causeway. For the construction of this great piece of engineering work the taxpayers have been paying annually a great amount in interest, and yet, now that a roadway is about to be completed through the town it was mapped out to give the town the go by when it was most desirable.

The population of Washington warrants consideration with a population of eighteen hundred and an assessed valuation of $1,860,000.

In contravention of the argument made by Mr. Pereria the State Highway engineer Robert M. Morton drew attention to the fact that now it is the desire of the highway commissioners and the engineers to route the state highways outside small towns because in thus doing there is less danger to the population, less congestion and less possibility of accidents to growing children.

Against this contention Pereria again tackled the question saying that the incline of the Southern Pacific bridge could easily be straightened out and that the people of Washington would guard their children from the possibility of accidents provided that the state highway would be routed through the community.

J. J. McNally made a talk against conveying the roadway to the M Street bridge and suggested what he thought would be a better scheme, that is to say the building of a new bridge farther south than the M Street bridge to cross the Sacramento river at R Street or Y Street, thus avoiding all railroad crossings.

Thomas O'Connor a large interested property owner spoke against the routing of the road to the Southern Pacific bridge account the great congestion of traffic that will naturally come about at Second and I Streets in Sacramento when the new Southern Pacific depot is completed. O'Connor drew attention to the fact that right at the entrance to the bridge in Sacrameno fourteen hundred and fifty four street cars pass in every twenty-four hours making that place ever so much more dangerous than the crossing at the Sacramento side of the M Street bridge.

Buckingham as supervisor of this section of Yolo county introduced a map showing the roadway in connection with the Southern Pacific bridge and routed along the present line, namely along Fifth Street from the subway under the Southern Pacific tracks, thence east along the Southern Pacific tracks to the S. P. bridge, thus avoiding any grade crossing. He announced also that as a supervisor of Yolo county he would gladly do what he could to obtain this routing.

The State Highway Commissioners were kind enough to extend the time granted for this hearing by nearly ten minutes. Only half an hour had been allowed because several more hearings were to be given that afternoon but the Commissioners conceded a point giving the people of Washington every opportunity to explain their difficulties and desires.

Besides those mentioned above, there were present at the meeting representing the property owners of Washington ex-Supervisor E. A. Palm, Peter McGregor, Ray Peak, D. J. Silvey, Mrs. Joe Pereria, Mrs. J. McNevin and several others.

The commissioners did not announce before the close of the meeting what action they would take on changing the routing of the road as already planned and leading to the M Street bridge but the president, Harvey M. Toy did announce that the commissioners believed in the absolute necessity of a new subway under the Sacramento Northern enbankment.

BETTER MAIL SERVICE IS BADLY NEEDED IN WEST SACRAMENTO

Rural Route No. 8 out of Sacramento delivers mail tri-weekly on the State highway between Washington and Yolo Causeway and also along Jefferson Boulevard outside of West Sacramento city proper as far south as Riverview and thence along the river levee road back as far as West Sacramento headquarters.

This route was established out of the Sacramento postoffice last September and at that time a promise was made that when the delivery and pickup of mail on this route became sufficiently heavy a daily delivery would be made.

The delivery and pickup of mail on the route has not yet been sufficient to warrent a daily delivery and pickup but it is gradually growing with the anticipation that in the near future the postoffice authorities will see fit to establish this convenience.

As it is at the present time farmers and business people are put out somewhat because a tri-weekly delivery does not suit them very well, especially in the matter of receiving daily papers, magazines and similar mail.

Box owners on the route can help materially to bring about a daily delivery. They can leave their mail in their boxes for the letter carrier to pick up instead of taking them directly to the postoffice in Sacramento as is done very frequently. This encourages the authorities to extend a better service where a showing is made that better service is needed.

Subscribers to The Independent along the route who formerly received their papers on Saturday mornings are now sometimes forced to forego delivery until Monday morning and this fact is anything but agreeable because the farmer would put in his time or Sunday in gathering the news of his neighborhood from the columns of the local paper.

Even from a selfish motive the Independent urges its readers along this route to increase, in so far as possible, their deposits of mail in their proper boxes along the route.

MAYOR ELKUS HUNTS STOLEN PROPERTY IN RIVERBANK

WOODLAND, Jan. 10.—Constable Roy Hillhouse spent much of yesterday scouring the Riverbank district for property alleged to have been stolen from the Sacramento farm of Albert Elkus, mayor of the capital city. Hillhouse was unable to locate the stolen goods.

BOOSTER'S CLUB HAD QUIET MEETING TO PREPARE FOR BATTLE

The meeting of the Washington Boster's club at the town hall last Tuesday evening consisted mostly in preparationfor the appearance of representatives at the State Highway Commissioners hearing to be held on the following day.

Complaint was heard again that the culvert at the corner of Fourth and Harriet Streets is in bad shape needing repairs and in its present condition is backing up surface water into the basement of some homes in the neighborhood.

The meeting was enlivened to a great extent by the presence of Mrs. Hart a property owner in the West Sacramento district or Carly Acres. Mrs. Hart announced her intention of joining the club and becoming a Booster, not only for the town of Washington but for the growing section in the West Sacramento District known as Carly Acres.

It was resolved at the meeting of the Booster's club held last Tuesday evening that future meetings of the organizations would be held every Monday night at 8 p. m., and a cordial invitation was extended to all property owners in the district to be present and partake in the discussions concerning the advancement and prosperity of the town.

CHARGE AGAINST ESPINOZA DISMISSED

WOODLAND, Jan. 15. — Miguel Espenoza nearly wore out a pair of shoes walking between Washington, Yolo county, and Woodland, but Miguel says it was worth while.

He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon upon A. Fuller, and while in the county jail aided Sheriff J. W. Monroe to suppress a jail break on the part of W. P. Richards and Joe Duncan, convicted bank bandits. As a reward he was given his release on his own recognizance pending his trial.

He was summoned to Woodland three times by the authorities and each time he made the round trip of forty miles on foot. When he returned to Washington last night after the third round trip he carried an order dismissing the charges. Fuller had failed to show up in court yesterday and upon motion of District Attorney George T. Kern, Superior Judge W. A. Anderson ordered dismissal of the case without prejudice.

Representative in Congress Lineberger, who hails from Long Beach, wants to recommend a puritan from Los Angeles for the federal Judgeship in this section of the state.

God save us from chemically pure southerners.

Police log

Jan. 3, 8:15 p.m.
A 21-year old man was arrested for allegedly providing nail polish to a 13-year old girl to sniff, making her intoxicated. The man then had sexual relations with her, the girl said, although she unsuccessfully tried to resist.

Jan. 4, 3:15 a.m.
An officer stopped a 34-year old man riding a bike with no light on West Capitol Ave. The suspect admitted carrying a concealed knife "for protection," and was arrested.

Jan. 4, 8:19 a.m.
A Sacramento hospital reported a nine-year old girl may have been molested by her West Sacramento mother's boyfriend.

Jan. 4, 11:45 a.m.
An officer stopped a car with expired registration while it was travelling on West Capitol Ave. The 27-year old male West Sacramento man driving admitted having an open container of alcohol in the vehicle. A search turned up a brown substance which tested positive for opiates, and both the man and a 32-year old female passenger were arrested.

Jan. 5, 12:19 a.m.
A woman at a Harbor Blvd. motel reported that someone had removed one tire from her vehicle in the parking lot, leaving behind a tire jack.

Jan. 5, 8:49 a.m.
A Joan St. man reported someone had broken into his truck tool box, stealing tools valued at about $50.

Jan. 5, 3:46 p.m.
A West Capitol Ave. mobile home park manager reported a man in his 60s was brandishing a shotgun, threatening to shoot another person's dog if it bit him. The caller declined to pursue the issue with police.

Jan. 5, 9:43 p.m.
Someone reportedly kicked in the back gate of a Rogers St. home.

Jan. 5, 11:38 p.m.
The man complaining earlier about a neighbor's dog at a West Capitol mobile home park called police, asking that they check the dog, which had bit him, to see if it was current on rabies shots. When told to call back on the non-emergency line, the man reportedly became angry and insisted he wanted medical aid right then.

WASHINGTON UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Washington Unified School District received $203,908 in this year's budget as a One-Time District Grant. The funds are to be used by the district for instructional materials, library resources, deferred maintenance, educational technology and/or any other non-recurring costs.

The District's Board of Education would like to invite public input regarding the establishment of priorities in deciding how to spend the money. The Board is particularly interested in hearing from parents, teachers, members of the district's bargaining unit leaders at this public hearing.

When deciding how to spend the money, the Board of Education will review the district's programs in the following areas:

Instructional Materials

The need for books and other instructional materials for classrooms

Library Resources

The need for library books and other materials which could be used in the schools' libraries

Deferred Maintenance

A look at the facilities at the schools and any needs for facility repairs

Educational Technology

The need for computers (hardware and software) as well as any other technology resources needed in the schools

Other Non-Recurring Costs

The need for other things for the schools which are non-recurring or are one-time purchases

Local Scene

Little League

Washington Little League sign-ups will take place on five different dates during the months of January and February at the Bryte Firehouse on Lisbon Street. Sign-ups are for boys and girls, ages 5 through 15. Boundaries are anything north of West Capitol Avenue. Applications for managers are currently being accepted. All returning players and new sign-ups must show birth certificate and proof of residence. Opening Day is April 5. For specific information on dates and costs, please call Mike at 371-5792.

Girls Softball

Sign-ups for West Sacramento Girls Softball will take place on 6 different dates at Holy Cross School, 1321 Anna Street. Sign-ups include instructional tee-ball, rookies, minors, majors and seniors, ages 5 through 19. Umpires are currently needed; certification classes are available. All new and returning players must bring their birth certificates. For specific information on dates and costs, please see the notice on page 3.

Crab Feed

Holy Cross School will hold their annual crab feed on February 8 at Holy Cross School beginning at 6 p.m. There will be music, dancing, no-host bar, and a tremendous raffle! Tickets are $20 per person and can be purchased now by contacting the school office at 371-1313; Danny or Diana Valencia at 372-1757; or Christina Vega at 991-3772.

College courses through cable TV

West Sacramento residents who may be disappointed that the local cable network will not offer any college credit television courses this spring may find the answer to their problem by calling the distance coordinator, Andrea Valdez, at 558-2636. Sacramento City College will be offering 14 classes over the air in Sacramento beginning January 21 and range from business and Spanish and Theater Arts. It is possible if negotiations between the city, Sonic and SCC succeed, these classes will once again be available locally. In any event, the distance learning office can arrange for a rental for the tapes for $40 with a return of $20 as the deposit for the tapes.

Since the program was initiated at SCC more than 12,000 students have taken these college level classes in the comfort of their own home. It combines on campus visits with an integrated program of televised lessons and printed material.

near West Sacramento measured on this scale, but had heard nearby communities referring to their own flooding as being on a 40-year or 100-year flood level.

Because West Sacramento has 100-year flood protection, flood insurance is optional for local homeowners.

Only a few streets, such as Glide Ave. and Houston St., suffered short term flooding last week when storm drains became blocked.

Groundwater broke the surface near Gregory Ave., reported von Kaenel, creating another relatively minor nuisance.

Von Kaenel said that besides calling the police department for information, residents can keep tabs on emergency situations by listening to radio stations such as KFBK 1530 AM, or watching city messages which can now be posted on cable TV's channel 20.

In the event of a need for evacuation, the city would try to get the word out through such means as these, as well as contacting local neighborhood watches to ask them to make phone calls and sending emergency vehicles throughout the city with an evacuation message.

LETTERS from p. 5

up the profits of the little fishes for their own purposes. Well, I'm thinking a little perinea can tackle a fat bass, and I'd like to see a little of that attitude in this city for a change.

Whey should we be giving our tax dollars to government agencies to give to politicians (i.e., transit funds)? It is a great way to manipulate power rather than do their jobs. If a road needs fixing or building needs repair because it serves the public, why would you have to give money to a political body or person to get the job done? I'm finding it hard to feel sympathy for anyone in power these days, since none of them seem interested in making themselves and the system accountable.

The Gann letter said that $0.67 of each dollar is spend on debt service including investment commissions and brokerage fees. Wonder why you see all those firms donating to politicians? Well, your taxdollars feather their beds -- and rather well. You probably thought that you were entitled to police, fire, street repair, school buildings in good repair, sewers that don't spill into the river -- but politicians have created a system where they can give your dollars to firms, contractors, businesses, stadiums, marinas, golf courses, etc., if they find it "beneficial."

In West Sacramento, there will be interesting things going on in the future, but little fables need to remind us that when the cow jumps over the moon, we do not want to pay for the trip. Now for people who want a literal interpretation of this statement, let's not pay for the regional hook-up to benefit Sacramento, the stadium which should be built by private business people. Raley's trust development, Money Store rent, Lighthouse Marina Project investment problems. Dysfunction seems to be a politician's prerequisite, and I'd like to see government in a "real" rehab program, withdrawing from my tax dollars and becoming responsible for their behavior.

Fast Refunds

To get fast refunds, the FTB encourages taxpayers to TeleFile or file electronically through a qualified tax preparer. Refunds are mailed within ten days. If you cannot TeleFile or otherwise file electronically, the FTB reminds taxpayers that the earlier they file, the quicker their refund will arrive. Taxpayers who file in January or February generally get their refunds within two to four weeks. Those waiting until March or April can expect to wait -- up to six to eight weeks, to receive their refund check. Last year, 7.5 million Californians received a refund that averaged $400.

New Legislation

New tax provisions enacted this year bring about several changes that could affect the California tax return.
